DDRT's Wilson receives DLA Personnel of the Year Award

By Stacy L. Umstead, DDC Command Affairs Office

Rose Wilson of Defense Distribution Depot Red River, Texas (DDRT), was a 2005 recipient of the Defense Logistics Agency's (DLA) Personnel of the Year award.

Wilson, a Supply Technician (Office Automation) for DDRT's Resource Team, Operations Support Branch, Distribution Support Division, was one of ten DLA employees who received the prestigious award.

Wilson was acknowledged for her contributions while serving as Chairperson for the Federal Women's Program for the DDRT Defense Complex. The position is part of the diversity committee for Federal Women on Red River Army Depot. Wilson works with the committee on women's programs and gathers data to present to the workforce for input or suggestions. She's served on the committee for the last three years and has been the chairperson for the last two. Wilson organizes and presents multiple programs and luncheons for the entire workforce at the complex. For the last two years, Wilson has been instrument in initiating actions requesting permission for DDRT employees to attend the
